Learn the latest intervention strategies for successful skin and wound care, including

- cleansing, debridement and dressing application
- infection control challenges and solutions
- the best methods for documenting skin and wound care
- the latest products for cleansing, moisturizing, sealing, protecting
- dressing options and selection rationale

Ann's evidence-based research and vast clinical experience, coupled with photographic examples and her consultative approach, allow her to deliver this material in a style conducive to learning and real world application. Register today for this wonderful learning opportunity!

SPEAKER

Ann Kahl Taylor, MS, RN, CWOCN®, is currently a Certified Wound, Ostomy, Contingence Nurse (CWOCN®) and Infection Preventionist at a hospital in the Atlanta area. She has over 15 years' experience in her specialty and is the owner of Kahl WOC Consults, providing a variety of wound, ostomy, and continence services in long term care, home health and hospice. In addition to her clinical practice, Ann also provides consultation for litigation related to wound care. She established a continence center and wound care protocols for acute and chronic care settings.

Ann is an active member of the Wound, Ostomy, and Contingence Nurses Society (WOCN), and has served in a number of regional leadership positions. She has previously served on the Marketing Committee of the Wound, Ostomy and Contingence Nursing Certification Board™. Ann has published extensive wound and continence research abstracts with the WOCN Society and has presented her findings at national conferences. She has authored and coauthored articles for Ostomy Wound Management and Journal of Wound Ostomy and Contingence Nursing.
